Big Tuna Catch Landed in City By 25 Vessels

Excitement Sweeps Fishing Plants When 210,000 Pounds Brought In High-pitch excitement swept through local fishing company plants yesterday as the greatest aggregate catch of tuna was brought back to this port.

Throughout the day, according to a survey made among city fish plants, a total of at least 210,000 pounds of tuna was brought to this port in about 25 vessels. The fishermen are receiving $350 a ton for their catches.

It was a great day for many fishermen, whose landings of the "chicken of the sea" averaged from 7,000 to 15,000 pounds.

At the Ogden Point plant of B.C. Packers Ltd. activity hit an all-time high for the year, with as many as five vessels at the plant at one time. With every minute a precious one, the fishermen and the plant workers were operating at full capacity.

TAKE TURNS

Vessels took turns at tying up alongside fish unloading facilities to have their catches removed from holds, taken by conveyor belts into the plants, then immediately iced and made ready for quick-freezing.

There were four boats unloading in the morning at the Inner Harbor plant of Kyuquot Trollers' Co-operative Association, and several more arrived in the afternoon. Other vessels took their hauls to the Inner Harbor plant of B.C. Packers, formerly the B. W. Brown firm. Most of the fish have been caught between 40 and 120 miles offshore in waters ranging from southwest of Cape Flattery to Estevan Point.

PLASTIC LURES

The majority of the tuna fishermen this year are using a recently developed plastic lure. Designed to resemble a small squid, these lures have a plastic body in a variety of colors. The legs, or feelers, of the squid are made of brilliantly colored rubber strips. The entire unit measures about five inches in length, and includes a double barbed hook.

Tuna boats, operating as trollers, use as many as 15 lines at one time. Length of the lines ranges from four to 20 fathoms, with no weight. (Pictures on page 2.)

Weary Fire Fighters Battle to Check Montana Blaze

As two of the worst fires raged on in Montana yesterday, smoke-grimed men struggle to curb spread of the flames which already have claimed 13 lives. Top picture, rushed to The Colonist by newly-installed wirephoto, shows a string of pack mules carrying emergency drinking water for fire fighters up Merriweather Canyon near Helena. As the mules climbed the trail boats stood by ready to evacuate the crews if the flames proved menacing. Scene below shows supplies being 'dropped' by parachute for the firemen. Additional supplies already down can be seen on the ground surrounding the white target cross. Smoke from the fire billows up in the background.

Aid Rushed to Homeless In Quake-Ripped Ecuador

QUITO, Ecuador, Aug. 8 (AP)—One hundred thousand Ecuadorians today were officially reported homeless as a result of the earthquake that ripped 80 cities and villages last Friday.

Unofficial estimates of the number killed rose as high as 4,000 but an aide to President Getulio Fierro said the death toll was more likely to be between 2,000 and 4,000.

The aide, Presidential Secretary Miguel Albornoz, said the Government had not been able to compile a death list.

(Reuters News Agency, in a dispatch from Guayaquil, listed the death toll at 9,241. The dispatch, quoting a Guayaquil official, estimated 5,000 were killed in Ambato, 3,000 in Pelileo and 1,000 in Patate.)

The president Sunday announced that in one town of 3,500, identified as Pelileo, there were only 300 survivors.

Mock Attack

President Fierro told a press conference the highest emergency problem now is to provide lodging for 100,000 people.

He said the Government had asked the American republics to rush tents to the area and that the United States already was sending emergency shipments of canned goods, an indispensable item on relief.

International News Service reported from Washington that Basil O'Connor, president of the American Red Cross, allocated $15,000 for emergency medical supplies and other necessities for victims of the quake.

The president said his estimate Sunday of $20,000,000 property damage was "very modest" and might go much higher.

Latest information available today in Quito was that no foreigners were killed or injured in the earthquake.

(In Toronto, W. R. Roberts disclosed that he had received word by short-wave radio from Quito that all Protestant missionaries are safe.

He said his son, Dr. Paul W. Roberts, and his daughter-in-law are working in one quake-stricken area. Miss Catherine Erb, a Toronto nurse, and another Canadian couple, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cook, also were reported safe.)

Evacuation of Canton Under Way in Earnest

CANTON, Aug. 8 (INS)—Evacuation of the provisional Nationalist Chinese capital of Canton got under way in earnest today with planes, ships and land vehicles removing Government personnel and records.

A Government spokesman said in a statement that neither Acting President Li Tsung-jen nor Premier Yen Shi-kan are making plans to leave Canton but admitted the future of the Government depends on battles now raging north of the capital.

TO DETERMINE ACTION
He said the present struggle along the Hanchuan-Hengyang-Kanchow line will determine the future action of the Government.

Shiploads of Government property and personnel have been leaving Canton during the past few days bound for Formosa.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's headquarters are maintained at Taipei, Formosa.

Other evacuees, including members of President Li's office, have chartered planes and tomorrow are heading for Chungking, wartime Nationalist capital. Others are expected to take the land route, a journey of about a month.

The evacuation to isolated Chungking indicates it will be the headquarters of the executive Yuan, the highest executive branch of the Nationalist Government.

OFFICIAL ON SCENE
A top-ranking official of the Yuan already is in Chungking to supervise setting up of the new headquarters.

Latest reports from the battlefield to the North indicate new Communist gains in the Shaoyang district, 80 miles west of Hengyang, which is about 300 miles north of Canton.

Heavy Nationalist air attacks on the Communist forces were reported slowing them somewhat.

Reinforced Communist troops to the East reportedly are driving on Yingtai, threatening to isolate the important coastal city of Poochow.

The capture of Yingtai would give the Communists nearly all land approaches to Poochow.

Chief Hits Council In Fire Statement

Suitable Equipment Lacking Says Law in Saanich Squabble

Saanich Council puts "too much emphasis on saving the dollar instead of a life," Fire Chief Joseph Law declared in a comprehensive report to the council last night.

Chief Law made the remark in making his reply to statements of Ward Six Ratepayers' Association about fire department inefficiency.

By a unanimous vote the council last night decided to rescind its previous motion making the meeting a closed session. The meeting was thrown open to the public and the press invited in because it was felt the chief's reply should be made public right away.

Council decided to hold a special meeting August 29 to discuss the issue with Ward Six ratepayers. Because several councillors had their holidays planned, this was the earliest date a full council could be gathered.

EQUIPMENT UNSUITABLE

In answering the ratepayers' statements one by one, Chief Law indicated throughout that his equipment for fire fighting in the large rural ward was not suitable.

A vote of confidence by the council appeared assured Chief Law and his department. Reeve E. C. Warren first suggested the vote be passed, but it was later decided to withhold the vote until the meeting with the ratepayers' association.

Councillor William E. Bond, however, disagreed, stating that the vote of confidence should be passed immediately. Councillor Leslie H. Pasmore felt that the Saanich department was equal to any in the area, and the reeve paid tribute to the work of the chief and his men during the recent hot spell and resulting fires.

OFFERED SERVICES

"They (off-shift men) were phoning in asking if they would be needed, as tired as they were," stated Reeve Warren. A letter also was read from an appreciative ratepayer.

In answering the ratepayers' statement that Reeve Warren "has undermined the authority of the fire chief by dictatorial interference with the chief's authority in maintaining discipline," Chief Law replied:

"I am not one to be dictated to by anyone, and will not, as long as I am chief. I have had a difference of opinion with the reeve many times, but always discussions have been conducted in a businesslike manner in the interest of the public, for better fire protection for all I have always maintained that all emergency services... should be the best that money can buy."

ANSWERING STATEMENT

He stressed, however, that he was not implying that Reeve Warren had ever exercised dictatorial methods, but that he was merely answering the Ward Six group's statement.

Chief Law answered all of the ratepayers' association's statements to the apparent satisfaction of the council. He agreed with the ratepayers' statement that the present fire trucks are not suitable for the Ward Six area, adding that tank trucks are the only solution "and have been recommended by me on previous occasions."

HAVE LARGE HOSE

One of the ratepayers' criticisms was that the fire trucks used in Ward Six fires are not equipped with the large size hose as recommended by the chief in his report to the council. The chief replied that the trucks used in the ward are equipped with large hose, but cannot be used with portable pumps.

Chief Law denied that fire crews sent to Ward Six blazes have been largely composed of "probationers" presumably getting trained at the expense of Ward Six householders, by stating that new recruits are distributed evenly with experienced firemen. He also denied that there is a great turnover in the personnel of the department, adding he can show records proving it.

Council hired a temporary fireman to help work off about 1,000 hours' overtime built up by firemen during the recent run of fires. He is Ivel Kenneth Dalziel, 608 Craigflower Road. He was chosen from 26 applicants.

WILL GIVE AID

Sidney Volunteer Fire Brigade informed the council that it would respond to calls for aid from the Saanich Fire Department but not from residents. Even so, it's officials felt calls couldn't be answered from farther away than Mount Newton Crossroads. Council will thank the department and the two chiefs will confer.

James J. Proudfoot, who has been retained by the International Association of Firefighters in connection with the Ward Six ratepayers' statements, was granted his request to have a copy of the statements.

Shinglers Win Demands But Lose Out on Jobs

Shinglers of a local builders' supply firm yesterday won all their demands and lost their jobs.

Stewart & Hudson Ltd. agreed to all demands of the Shinglers' Union, an affiliate of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

However, the company announced that as soon as present contracts were completed it would discontinue with the roofing branch of its George Road plant indefinitely.

According to G. J. Stewart, a director of the firm and Victor Midgely, international representative of the union, the two factions agreed on the following terms:

The company would rehire all discharged union men, increase wage of 90 cents and $1.25 to $1 and $1.55 an hour, and commence a 40-hour week.

The dispute arose Friday when the union issued an ultimatum demanding that the firm reinstate some union shinglers released two weeks ago, and sign a contract calling for wage increases.

Mr. Midgely said the ultimatum was unworkable, forcing the union to string a 20-man picket line around the premises early Saturday morning. They withdrew in the afternoon when yesterday's meeting was set.

Mr. Stewart said last night he had produced evidence at the meeting which showed that non-union men had not been hired by the company after union men had been laid off, as the union representative had charged.

NO PAY LOST
He also stressed that the men had been placed with competitive firms at the cost of a "great deal of time and trouble" and had not lost "a day's pay."

A new agreement had not been signed, but the firm would issue a notice informing the men of the conditions agreed on at yesterday's meeting, Mr. Stewart said.

The conditions of the new agreement were endorsed at a union meeting last night.

Highs and Lows Of the Weather

Behind the reported strategic differences now disclosed stood the fact that temperamental differences do exist.

Viscount Montgomery, outside his official duties, lives a solitary life, eschews parties, goes to bed at 10 p.m. and rises at 7 a.m.

Gen. de Lattre de Tassigny, on the other hand, is a mixer, loves good food and wine, goes to bed at 3 a.m. and gets up at 11 a.m. On the point of working schedules alone the two soldiers are scarcely compatible.

Viscount Montgomery is reported frequently to have been irritated over the French general's tardiness in keeping appointments.

Paper Says Pitchblende Discovered

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Aug. 8 (CP)—The Prince Albert Daily Herald in a newspaper story today reports a large discovery of pitchblende in the Goldfields area of Northwestern Saskatchewan.

The story by Burton Lewis, editor, who has just returned from the area, states that it is the largest single exposure of "massive pitchblende" found in any part of Canada other than in the Great Bear Lake region of the North-West Territories.

Pitchblende is the "chief" source of uranium finds in Canada.

ON UNSTAKED CLAIM

The strike was uncovered on one of the last nine claims left unstacked in the area, just north of Beaver Lodge Lake, 500 miles north of Prince Albert.

They were staked as "last chance" claims by Alf Caywood, a pilot-flying for the Eldorado Mining & Refining Company, and the actual prospecting was done by another Eldorado pilot, John Nesbitt, in his hours off duty.

Nothing is yet known of the depth of the vein, or its probable total length, although the story states intersecting fractures from the point of exposure have been found to be highly mineralized with pitchblende seams and stringers.

Grim Fight Goes On In Flaming Forests

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 8 (INS)—An army of fire fighters, smoke-blackened and weary, continued to wage a grim war against flames in Helena National Forest today, as the fire swept eastward towards the rich timber on Willow Mountain.

"Thirteen persons, 12 of them U.S. Forest Service 'smoke jumpers,' have perished in the blaze—worst in nearly a half century in the Northwest.

The main fight today was along a three-and-one-half-mile front, where the blaze moved towards Willow Mountain. In other sections, after burning over 5,000 acres, the fires continued to burn, but were apparently hemmed in.

MEANS FIRE
Meanwhile, 35 miles to the west, a mystery fire destroyed the $100,000 Swaneeva flotation mill, but a crew quickly blocked its threat to adjoining forests.

Crew foremen, fighting the main fire, have given up any hope of effective rain, but watched warily for a sign of changing wind.

The fire fighters have pinned their hopes in gaining control of the blaze on an unchanging wind which would allow the igniting of effective backfires and the digging of strategically-located trenches.

Six hundred men are pitted against the fire which has destroyed 6,000 acres of lush timberland since last Friday.

CLIFFS OBSTACLE
Sheer cliffs which rise as high as 1,000 feet have impeded the fire fighters.

There also is the constant danger of the dread "crown" fire, in which the flames progress wildly by leaping from treetop to treetop, leaping any man-made obstructions such as trenches.

French General Denies Montgomery Maps Defence on "Withdrawal Plan"

LONDON, Aug. 8 (CP)—Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny, commander-in-chief of land forces of the Western Union group of countries, tonight denied reports that Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, his chief, is considering a defence plan of withdrawal from the Continent.

The French general in a formal statement "took public notice of widespread reports of differences between him and Viscount Montgomery. The reports have said the two leaders of the Western Union Military alliance among Britain, France, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg, don't see eye to eye on how best to defend Western Europe in the event of war. In the statement, De Lattre de Tassigny said it isn't so.

Press dispatches displayed prominently during the last week have credited Viscount Montgomery with a "Dunkirk complex." They claimed that in the French view he thinks in terms of a possible withdrawal to Britain as in 1940 and opposes committing Britain to sending a large army across the English Channel.

The French look on such ideas with horror. They want any future war fought as far east as possible and their country saved from military occupation.

Tonight's statement from de Lattre de Tassigny, issued from Western Union headquarters at Pontalieu, southeast of Paris, acknowledged "some varying conceptions" of strategy had developed. These he termed "quite natural."

But on the main question of continental defence it was emphatic. "Statements implying that Field Marshal Montgomery's idea is to withdraw the defence line outside the continent are completely without foundation," de Lattre de Tassigny declared.

The general said details of the strategic plan "can definitely not be made the subject of public discussion." But he emphasized that the entire military staff at Pontalieu "have always unanimously regarded their task as being the achievement of an effective defence of all the territories of the Brussels Pact nations."

Press reports of differences between the two leaders reached a climax during the week-end. The Sunday Express said United States military leaders as well as those of France opposed Viscount Montgomery. The newspaper credited to "shrewd observers" the opinion that the field marshal could not continue much longer as the boss of the Western Union setup.

DIFFERENCES EXIST
Behind the reported strategic differences now disclosed stood the fact that temperamental differences do exist.

Viscount Montgomery, outside his official duties, lives a solitary life, eschews parties, goes to bed at 10 p.m. and rises at 7 a.m.

Stop Dumping Garbage At Lake; Plan Plebiscite

Dumping of municipal garbage beside a small stream leading from Maitly Lake to Prospect Lake will be immediately discontinued and Saanich ratepayers will pass judgment by plebiscite at the December elections on a new garbage collection plan.

After receiving a petition signed by 58 Prospect Lake residents who protested the garbage dump, Saanich Council last night decided to abolish it, but made no definite plan for an immediate solution.

TO WORK OUT FEE
Council voted unanimously to put a plebiscite to the ratepayers asking if they approve of a new scale of fees for garbage collection, John

Will Let Contract Today

Contracts for clearing and grading 16 miles of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway right-of-way from Cottonwood Canyon northward beyond Ahlau Creek will be awarded today. Premier Byron Johnson said yesterday after tenders were opened in his office.

There were three tenders submitted, all on a unit basis, by Northern Construction and J. W. Stewart Ltd., Jamieson Construction Company, Ltd., and Campbell Bennett Ltd., all of Vancouver.

STUDY BIDS
Engineers in the Provincial Department of Railways are studying bids to determine the total cost of the work.

Campbell Bennett Ltd. is already at work on 14 miles of right-of-way leading from Quenel to Cottonwood Canyon at a contract price of $654,022.

Tenders are still to be called on 32 miles of the 33-mile stretch between Quenel and Prince George, and on bridging Cottonwood Canyon, regarded as one of the most difficult and expensive parts of the extension program.

Transportation In London Described Here

If local transportation company officials think they have problems, they ought to look over the transportation system of London, England. There they have a full-time working staff of approximately 90,000—just a few thousand less than the entire population of Greater Victoria—and operate no less than 4,000 tube trains and more than 9,000 other vehicles.

The number of people carried by the London Transport Board system over one year is equivalent to far more than the world population.

GIVES HIGHLIGHTS
Interesting highlights of the great transport system were presented by Leonard Hatcher in an address to the Gyro Club at the Empress Hotel yesterday. He said every imaginable measure was taken to ensure safety in the gigantic system, with the entire network electrically operated and controlled.

Between 4,000 and 5,000 suggestions a year are presented by personnel of the system, and through this means the system is being constantly improved.

Mr. Hatcher said it was "know how" personnel of the London Transport Board who were responsible for the building of Moscow's transportation system.

Traveling Fire Truck Blazes, Is Destroyed

The Ladysmith fire department was called out early last night to put out a fire engine fire.

According to Ladysmith Fire Chief Frank Jameson the inflammable fire engine was an ancient model, estimated vintage 1902, that was on its way from Victoria to a last resting place in a Nanaimo park.

The driver escaped unharmed when the antique fire buggy suddenly burst into flame just on the outskirts of town.

He commandeered a passing car and rushed to the nearest phone. The fire chief said that the ancient engine was almost a total loss, its motor blacked out, its fancy leather and mohair seats destroyed by flames that were still burning brightly when the Ladysmith fire engine arrived on the scene.

The driver, whose name was not learned, was on his way to Nanaimo when last seen. He said that he would send out a towing truck in the morning.

Nobody in Victoria could cast any light last night on where the old-time had come from.

A check on two ancient fire engines known to be in the city established the fact that they were in their customary places, one in the City Market here and the other in a local lot.

Victoria Fishermen Bring Fortune in Tuna to This Port

Many thousands of pounds of tuna, valued at $350 per ton, were brought to city fish plants yesterday as tuna season gets "really under way." Landings were by far the greatest brought here this season. Photograph at left shows feign of fish being handled by husky Bernard Curry. Peter Miller of Ucluelet, crew member of the 48-foot tuna troller Miller Queen, is seen in centre illustration as he looks over one of the tuna-lures—designed as a small squid. Obviously happy about respective landings are three tuna boat skippers seen in the picture he enthuses, "—once you get used to the bloodshed." The couple intend to keep on globe circling for a while yet. "I'm going to travel until I can't travel any more," Mr. Reel says determinedly. He may then settle in Victoria and inhale quiet draughts of the tonic of longevity.

First Macaulay Camp Buildings To Be Released for Demolition

The city was asked yesterday to begin the release for demolition of buildings comprising the emergency housing shelter at Macaulay Camp.

The camp is administered by the Citizens' Rehabilitation Council of Greater Victoria.

"The three-year lease on Macaulay Camp expires October 2, 1949," A. Palmer, executive secretary of the Rehabilitation Council stated in a letter to the city, "but there are still about 50 families there who have not found other accommodation. As you no doubt know, the Department of National Defence has commenced a building project for homes for military personnel in the area immediately adjacent to our camp. Apparently the camp buildings are to be demolished to build more houses for permanent forces when we are finished with the camp."

Mr. Palmer disclosed that there were two vacant buildings at the camp which could be released for demolition immediately. He added another building would likely be ready for release by the end of September.

"Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation authorities have advised that it would be a step in the right direction if the city released buildings as they are vacated, and we, therefore, are requesting authority to take this action on the two buildings described."

World Travel Hobby Of Couple 18 Years

Ernest Reel, retired United States businessman who has been making a hobby of world travel for the past 18 years, is back in Victoria for his fifth visit.

The retired dried pea merchant—he was once the world's largest dealer in this homely commodity—says that Victoria is "a tonic for longevity."

The tonic, he says, is made up of an excellent climate, quiet atmosphere, "and the smiles of some very charming people."

When not in Victoria learning how to live longer Mr. Reel likes to travel briskly around the rest of the globe.

RETIRED AT 54

He has been doing this ever since he retired at the age of 54, after becoming suddenly convinced that there were better things to do in life than sell more dried peas than the next fellow.

Once he and his wife got started on their globetrotting they kept right on going. To date they are still without a legal address and only pay income tax direct to the United States-Federal Government.

Mr. Reel, who likes to think up forceful figures of speech, says that he just decided "one day that 'shrouds had no pockets' and if he was going to get any fun out of his dried pea profits he had better get rolling right away."

TEACHES TOLERANCE

Travel, he thinks, teaches tolerance and patience and erases prejudice.

It also gives you a chance to indulge in such interesting projects as riding elephants in India, camels in Egypt and Rickshaws in China. Not to mention dancing with a kangaroo in Australia.

Only 33 fires are burning over the whole of British Columbia, the B.C. Forest Service reported yesterday, and cool damp weather has led officials of the service to term the fire hazard only "moderate."

Approximately 100 men are fighting fires, mainly in the Nelson and Kamloops districts.

Still Stalling on Trans-Canada Highway Project

FOR all the promises held out by members of the Dominion Cabinet earlier in the year, Canada seems as far away as ever from realization of a policy on construction of a national highway. Assurances that a bill to authorize Federal assistance would be one of the first measures to be placed before the new Parliament now appear to be little better than an empty gesture. Gone is any hope that a start can be made this year, even if such a bill is presented at the coming session.

In a matter such as this, bearing on national development and progress, the lead should have come from the national Government; but it has not. Instead, the Dominion offers one excuse after another. First it was failure on the part of the provinces to reach agreement as to route. Now, according to reports brought back from Ottawa by Premier Johnson, it is failure by the provinces — always the provinces — to agree as to how costs of construction should be apportioned.

Among nine provinces widely differing in character of course there will be lack of accord on such questions; but is that to be allowed to retard the project forever? How can the provinces compose their differences on routes and costs without the assistance of some co-ordinating authority?

The Trans-Canada Highway proposal is a matter for an independent tribunal. This in the first instance could act as a fact-finding body to hear the views of the provinces on all aspects of the project, determine what was best from the national standpoint, and render an impartial verdict to the Dominion Government. Thereafter it could continue to function as a Federal highway commission with authority over the future upkeep and improvement of the highway, for it is hardly likely that provincial differences will end with the settlement of initial considerations. The Dominion's refusal to refer this matter to an independent body cannot help but raise doubts as to its sincerity about the whole project.

Spirited Race Continues for Jet Airliner

MOST things that can be imagined by the creative intellect of mankind may one day be achieved. In this category comes the swift expansion of flying within its first half century. Designers and aircraft builders have long since ceased to dream about jet airliners. They have built them. There is a spirited race on now between nation and nation to see which will be the first to put these tremendous new speeds and ceilings at the service of the travelling public. Great Britain and the United States have each gone far with such plans, with machines already under test.

The makers of the De Havilland Comet, a jet-propelled aircraft specially designed for trans-Atlantic flight, are predicting air crossings from London to New York at altitudes up to 40,000 feet in a six-hour period. That would do in an hour what the average fast marine liner required a day to accomplish not so long ago. It would cut the present air time between the two points in half, and bring in a tremendous range of altitudes in which to seek calm flying weather.

While the realization has not yet been accomplished, the prospect itself is enough to stir the imagination of anyone. It envisages the day when a traveller will breakfast in London and eat his next meal in New York, an ocean and a continent away. He will have got there without effort on his part, in perfect tranquillity, and in plush surroundings. What he may pay for his fare will be little more than first-class accommodation by water now, figuring in time and meals en route. Theoretically, it would be possible for him to complete two return journeys over the same distance in 24 hours — and if anyone may aspire to that it would be the Atlantic commuter.

Navy Week Stirs Interest in the R.C.N.

THE Royal Canadian Navy's commissioned ships on the Pacific Coast, together with naval shore establishments, will hold open house this week to the general public at set times and occasions. The cruiser H.M.C.S. Ontario, the destroyers Athabaskan and Crescent, and the frigates Antigonish and Beacon Hill will participate in the program, which has become a welcome annual event in this community. The ceremonies began yesterday with a naval parade, and will continue until the end of the week with plenty of opportunity for the public to see what Canada is doing afloat.

Although it is small by world standards, the Royal Canadian Navy is a highly-trained nucleus capable of considerable expansion in times of need. Its record in two world wars was good, and in the last conflict the force assumed a major role in convoy duties on the Atlantic, besides getting in on some of the action that helped to decide the fate of the world. In postwar times the R.C.N.R. has reverted to its peacetime status, but not before giving an excellent account of itself under service conditions at home and abroad.

As Canada has grown in her trade and opportunities so too has developed the need to keep abreast of the new conditions that today obtain. From here on Canada's naval service will be a worth-while permanent occupation for Canadians who are interested in a career at sea. Navy Week serves to remind the public of these things, and also to demonstrate at first hand what is being done by the nation in this regard.

P.G.E. EXTENSION

Sir,—Many people living in British Columbia do not know that the Northern Alberta Railway crosses the Peace River at Hines Creek and that some are in favor of continuing the Northern Alberta Railway to Fort Saint John and then over the Peace River to Hudson Hope.

If this is done why continue the P.G.E. to Dawson Creek? As to freight rates on wheat get in touch with Mr. Roche, Board of Trade in Fort Saint John, and he will give you figures on rates from Hines Creek, via Edmonton, to Prince Rupert, Vancouver or Eastern ports.

BRITISH OUTPUT

Sir,—Mr. Raymond Moley's articles on "Britain's Financial Plight," though couched in polite and restrained language, paint an unrestrained picture that "all is wrong and nothing's right" over there.

In the commercial and industrial conditions Mr. Moley has drawn he is wrong and his statements are likely to prejudice the sale of British goods.

If the price of British goods has increased, so have prices risen in every country. The raw materials and food which Britain has to buy overseas have increased very much more than the price she gets for her exported manufactures and this is one of the main causes of her present embarrassment. The Canadian and American miner and farmer and loggers have been the principal beneficiaries from the enormously increased prices of their products. The managing director of the firm making the English car which, in British Columbia has outsold all others, Canadian or American, in the first six months of this year, recently stated that while the labor costs of his 1949 car have only increased 30% over 1939, his raw materials have increased 230%.

Mr. Moley foretells the doom of Britain from her lack of raw materials and her other geographic and economic limitations. As an American, Mr. Moley should surely know that the greatest assets of any country lie in the people thereof. From the events of the last ten years and the behaviour of the British people during that time there does not seem any valid reason for supposing their decline in the future.

The industrial facts are that in the first six months of this year Britain increased the value of her exports 20% above 1948. (In the same period Canada increased hers 2%). And that in the past 12 months her sales abroad of such skill requiring and "know-how" of production of goods as electrical, electronic, aircraft and automobile were equal to those of the United States—relatively to population, three times as great.

If the general public has already forgotten the performance of British planes in the recent war, it will come as a reminder of that supremacy that the Pratt & Whitney Co., the makers of the finest piston engines for airplanes that the United States has, have just spent two years and $5,000,000 in starting to produce the Rolls-Royce jet engine (the "Nene" of the river series produced by R.R.). In the interim it is hardly likely that the English company has rested on its laurels and not produced something more advanced still.

No one nation can claim a monopoly on brains, inventiveness or on a progressive, hustling mentality, but a glance through the pages of any English engineering journal will show that Britain is still in the forefront of the nations in this respect and that the war has sharpened and not dulled her abilities.

Knowing these, what is there more
For learning in your little gear?
Are not these all gospel bright
Shining on your day?
How then shall your hearts be so
With envy and her brood of fears,
How forget the words of light
From the mountain way?

Blessed are the merciful—
Does not every threshold seek
Meadows and the flight of birds
For compassion still?
Blessed are the merciful—
Are we pilgrims yet to speak
Out of Olivet the words
Of knowledge and good-will?

Thinking Aloud

of shoes—and ships—and sailing war-of-cabbages and kings.
By TOM TAYLOR

IT was Leigh Hunt, so Bartlett tells me, who said that the maid-servant, the sailor and the schoolboy are the three beings that enjoy a holiday beyond all the rest of the world.

Now why should he think that? This column, for instance, is about to take a holiday, and unless realization is to make sport of anticipation it hopes to have as much fun as any sailor.

In a quiet way, naturally. It doesn't aim to emulate a seaman on the loose.

Mr. Hunt may have been in a sour mood, of course. Not long before he had been in jail for two years for calling the Prince Regent (of 1813) a "corpulent Adonis of filth," and while he managed to turn his prison into a "bower of roses"—prisons in those days were quite unlike Oakalla—maybe he was envying the maid-servant.

Perhaps he needed a holiday himself.

Vacations weren't so universal then as they are now. He is almost a queer person in 1949 who doesn't get a holiday of some kind or another. In one sense Mr. Hunt didn't know much about holidays, however. He "never knew his multiplication tables" and so he was always embarrassed. Possibly he never really "enjoyed" a vacation.

But enough of Mr. Leigh Hunt—I don't know how he got in here anyway.

I've been wondering whether, during my absence from the Old Lady of Broad Street, I should neglect her altogether. Newspaper folk, you know, are apt to imitate the busmen; they can seldom leave their trade alone.

The ideal thing would be to forget that a newspaper ever existed, to lock myself in solitude, to ignore the radio bluth. In fact, to let the world go by—and concentrate on keeping my lawn in shape.

Somehow or other I don't think I'll manage that blessed state.

The drawback is that you leave a hole in your time-and-event-memory that you never can plug afterwards. News never takes a holiday. And when one has the temerity to comment on the passing scene, even in the inconsequential fashion of this column, that hiatus is apt to be disconcerting.

I'm always interested when I hear of some stalwart who emerges from the backwoods of the beyond and confesses he never knew there was a war, for instance. Six years have dropped out of his mental life, just as though they had never been plotted on a calendar.

And he can never hope to catch up. No, I won't be able to leave the Old Lady entirely alone, I feel sure. If I manage to restrain myself from running up now and then, to see how she is getting along, I fancy I'll do well.

Funny, the fascination that exists in our daily work!

At the moment, however, I'm bothered by that eve-of-vacation feeling. The itch sets in early, as you may remember. For about a week beforehand, in fact, you are gradually becoming more and more unsettled. You're sort of filling in time.

Or at least you feel as though you are, even if you hope no one else suspects it.

You might even say, in a way, that holidays are debilitating—in advance, for this period leads to all kinds of queer things, such as the ramblings you are reading now.

Perhaps Leigh Hunt was right, after all.

Because it's the same when you come back from a vacation. It takes you about another week to settle down again. This time you're not anticipating but looking backwards, reluctant to leave lethargy behind and get to work.

Not, to be honest, that I'm ever troubled by that vague kind of penitence which holidays awaken next morning," as Dickens apparently was—but you know how it is.

Maybe it really is only maid-servants, sailors and schoolboys who take holidays as they come. But that I'll know more about when I sit down to this typewriter again.

Meanwhile, cheerio. I hope you miss me.

Across Unknown Antarctica

By THOMAS R. HENRY
Science Editor, North American
Newspaper Alliance

WASHINGTON—No human being has ever seen an area of more than 2,000,000 square miles of the earth's surface. This area constitutes approximately one-third of the Antarctic Continent "beyond the South Pole." In other words, it is the region extending from the continental coast south of Africa to the Pole—presumably a completely ice-covered land which is approximately bisected by the Meridian of Greenwich.

It is by far the greatest unknown left for the explorer this side of the moon. This is the country over which Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd expects to fly this winter on his fifth Antarctic expedition.

This flight has become a possibility only because of the latest developments in aviation. The plan is to launch one or more planes—possibly P-5V Neptunes which hold the world's distance record—from a navy carrier at the northern edge of the Weddell Sea ice pack. The flight, as proposed, would be completely across the continent to the admiral's historic camp at Little America on the Bay of Whales, an indentation in the Ross ice cap south of New Zealand which has been the base of the four previous American expeditions and which was the starting point of the Norwegian explorer Amundsen on his trek to the Pole.

At Little America, a base camp with a landing strip on the ice will have been set up to enable the planes to land, refuel, and possibly continue their flight to New Zealand. The expedition will be entirely navy, under the executive command of Captain George E. Dufek, veteran Arctic and Antarctic explorer—commander of the eastern task force of the 1947 expedition.

If the plan succeeds, Admiral Byrd will have fulfilled his dream of many years. On his last expedition, by pushing his plane to the extreme limit, he succeeded in getting about ten miles beyond the Pole from Little America and was able to look, quite superficially, over a radius of about 100 miles.

All previous approaches to the Pole have been from the New Zealand side. The Ross Sea cuts such a deep inden-tation into the continent that the Pole is only about 600 miles from the edge of the great ice shelf. The great Ross ice peak can always be negotiated, although sometimes with great difficulty and peril, during mid-Summer.

The picture from the African side is quite different. The Weddell pack is essentially unnegotiable. Nearly 800 miles separates the edge of the continent from the Pole. The one major effort to move inland from this direction was that of Sir Ernest Shackleton in 1914. His proposal was very similar to Admiral Byrd's present plan, except that he intended to cross the continent by foot rather than by air. A base camp had been set up on the edge of the Ross Sea and parties proceeded toward the Pole setting up supply depots.

Shackleton's ship was crushed in the ice. He and his men drifted for more than a year on the Weddell pack, but finally reached South Georgia, after enduring the greatest hardships ever recorded in polar exploration.

The territory over which Byrd proposes to fly was Adolf Hitler's New Schwabia. In the winter of 1939-40 a German expedition skirted the pack and sent planes a little distance inland. Markers were dropped claiming the territory for the Third Reich.

The German flyers, however, did not get beyond the rim of "mountains" which surround the continent, but their records are extremely valuable. Among the features spotted from the air were several ice-free "oases," presumably similar to one found on Admiral Byrd's last expedition on the other side of the continent.

New Schwabia now is claimed by Norway and has been renamed Queen Maud Land. This claim is recognized by Great Britain. No territorial claims in the Antarctic are recognized by the United States.

While the greater part of the territory is completely unknown, some fairly safe predictions as to its nature can be ventured. It presumably will be an extension of the great, level, high plateau which extends from Antarctica's mountain rim to the Pole from every direction. The ice is at least a mile thick. It may be much thicker. It hides all natural features except the peaks of very high mountains.

Beauty Suffices

(From The Ottawa Citizen)

THE habit of pasting labels on people, as on tins of cleanser or bottles of ketchup, surely stems from two factors: laziness and a normal desire for order in an anarchic world. Everyone seeks unvarying patterns, easily recognizable, in people and communities. The Scots are cautious in fiscal matters; a Canadian historian describes his fellow-nationals as dour; poets are dreamy; pilots and news photographers are crazy. Labeling has gone so far that Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition is hunting for a woman who combines "something of the graciousness and stability of Martine women, the vivaciousness and savoir faire of chic Quebec; the alertness and good clothes sense of women of Ontario; the free spirit of the Westerners and the warm-heartedness of the female from British Columbia."

The judgment is arbitrary, as many decisions dealing with human conduct must be. None of the terms is closely defined, nor the basis of comparison given. For example, what is "savoir faire" in Quebec? In Montreal it may mean knowing how to clasp and wave a cigarette-holder, or how to acknowledge with a nod the personal greeting of the head waiter in a night club. But in the suburbs of Rivière du Loup savoir faire probably means knowing how to milk the cows. The expression is at best a loose one. "Alertness" when applied to Ontario or any other women is little better. Does it mean alertness at catching a husband, advancing a career, or crossing the Plaza in Ottawa? A woman may easily be brilliant at one, yet a dope in the others.

Probably the safest thing to do is to pick a lovely woman, as husbands do, without classifying her character too precisely. Women are in any case unpredictable. It would be a black mark against the judges if the winner suddenly showed so little savoir faire as to find Toronto exciting. Montreal would never forgive the Canadian National Exhibition for such a dirty trick.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

Strange stuff, grass. Pamper it and it languishes in the August heat, whereas it is green and vigorous if it grows the hard way, up through cracks in the cement.—Winnipeg Tribune.

A biologist has come up with the statement that in every respect women are the equal of men—a most ungentlemanly piece of sarcasm.

TRIBUTE

The adjudicator at a recent drama festival complimented one society on its performance and commended its stage setting. "In particular," he said,

"the furniture had just the right note of vulgarity."

"Thanks for your kind appreciation," said one of the players to him at the end of the session. "But what a pity you did not know the furniture was our president's, lent to us for the occasion."—The Manchester Guardian.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

THIS is probably the darkest week in the Summer bachelor's season. It is still a good three weeks before the wife and children come home from the Summer cottage. The house has begun to smell like a mausoleum. The kitchen is a shambles.

Most comic cartoons show the Summer bachelor's kitchen with a sink stacked two feet high with dirty dishes. This is not usually the case. An experienced Summer bachelor uses only one or two dishes at the most, one cup, one knife, one fork. These he diligently washes under the tap after each grim meal and sets them apart on the drain board for the next.

It is not the dishes that foul up the kitchen. It is the slow, subtle accumulation of almost-empty milk bottles, partly consumed cans of fruit juice or other dainties, such as steak and kidney pie which, in a moment of sudden hope a week ago, he thought he might enjoy. It is the half-empty packets of patent cereals, now limp and damp, the saucers on the stove with ever-hardening rimes and remnants of culinary ventures of two weeks ago—these are the carefully-distributed sources of the aromas which are beginning to steal all through the house. For the true Summer bachelor never stacks things up. He scatters them about, half hidden behind other things, in an effort to create the impression that nothing, after all, is piling up.

But they are piling up. In cupboard corners, the tired socks and limp shirts are piling up. In the vestibule, the circulars, papers, throw-aways are forming quite a bushel on the floor. In the living-room, wrapping paper, empty cartons hastily tossed aside, odds and ends which the Summer bachelor brought downstairs at one time or another during his melancholy isolation—all the things a woman picks up not day by day, but hour by hour, have piled up in the living-room, on the radio, on the mantle, on the little tables. . . .

But, boys, it's only three weeks more.

Trade Between Canada, Russia May Soon Vanish Completely

OTTAWA, Aug. 8 (CP)—Canada's thinning trade lines to Russia — stretched so far you can almost pluck them — are showing signs of snapping altogether.

Trade officers say the decline in trade, which in any case has never flourished to the extent of Canada's shipments to and from democratic countries, stems principally from philosophies of the two countries.

RIGID STATE CONTROL
Communist Russia is ruled under rigid state control. Her sales and purchases on foreign markets are usually made under bilateral bulk-buying arrangements.

Canada, on the other hand, has rejected bilateral trade. The Dominion believes in free trade and wherever possible buys and sells on the open market.

The "marked recent decline in Russo-Canadian trade also may

Large Increase In Ship Travel On B.C. Coast

Carrying approximately 250 more passengers daily than last year, the B.C. Coast Steamship Service is having the busiest summer in its history, George H. Baillie, vice-president of the C.P.R. Pacific Region, reported yesterday.

Biggest relative increase is shown on the Vancouver-to-Seaside-Victoria run which is showing almost a 50 per cent jump in business over last year. The Vancouver-Nanaimo service, with six round trips operating daily for the first time, is showing an 11 per cent increase.

SHARP JUMP

"In July alone the B.C.C.S. carried more than 35,000 passengers more than it did in the same month last year," Mr. Baillie said. "The increased traffic is largely due to the introduction of the Princess Marguerite and Princess Patricia to the coastal runs and to the speeding up and increasing of operation. Also accommodation to meet the demand."

The Princess Kathleen, carrying more than 300 passengers, is operating an entirely new cruise service to Alaska but has not cut into the normal Alaska traffic in spite of the fact that she is solidly booked for the summer."

Oddities

NEWPORT BEACH, Cal., Aug. 8 (AP)—Wallace Lorraine Head today is the favorite waitress of the biggest tipper in town—because she was honest.

A week ago, a male patron ordered two drinks. He gave her a five and a one-dollar bill in payment. That, she told him, was way too much money and returned the surplus.

Saturday night, he came in again, sought her table and ordered another drink. He tipped her $50. Then he ordered another drink. Another $50 tip.

Then dinner. The tip was $100. She doesn't know his name.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 8 (AP)—Ann Neire, 34, Union City, N.J., today is one of the United States' most eligible bachelorettes.

She won $31,000 in cash and prizes yesterday on a radio program (N.B.C.—"Hollywood Calling").

But although she is single—not even engaged—the prize list includes an all-expense tour of Paris for herself and any man she chooses to accompany her, plus $2,000 worth of men's clothing.

Vote on Strike In Ford Plant

DETROIT, Aug. 8 (INS)—More than 80,000 Ford Motor Company employees began balloting today in a three-day poll, which will determine whether they will strike to enforce demands for industry's first pension plan and other economic aids.

U.A.W.-C.I.O. officials estimated some 30,000 votes were cast during the first day and predicted 85 per cent of the membership would approve strike action.

Company and union observers were posted at each booth, and approximately 150 ballots were challenged. A State Labor Board spokesman said the company issued the majority of challenges.

The union chartered 45 buses to transport members from factories to the polling booths. Some lines extended for a block, even during the "quiet" forenoon period.

Heaviest voting got under way shortly after 3 o'clock, when the day shift at the River Rouge plant filed out, and flocked to the 25 booths located near the U.A.W. Local 600 headquarters.

The parade to the polls snarled traffic, and automobiles lined up bumper to bumper for blocks.

Jimmy Stewart Finally to Wed

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 8 (INS)—A movie town tradition ceases tomorrow when tall Jimmy Stewart relinquishes his title as "Hollywood's most eligible bachelor."

The 41-year-old star is to give up his bachelorhood at a simple ceremony at which he is to be married to socialite Gloria Hatrick McLean, 31.

The wedding, at the Brentwood Presbyterian Church, will be attended by only a few relatives and close friends.

It will end Stewart's long reign as one of Hollywood's most popular escorts. During his 14 years in the film city his name has been linked romantically with many of the screen's leading beauties.

His bride, Gloria Hatrick McLean, 31, is a former model and actress.

She was born in New York City and came to Hollywood in 1934. She has appeared in several films, including "The Sign of the Cross" and "The Sign of the Cross".

Thief Drives Off With Furniture

VANCOUVER, Aug. 8 (CP)—A bold thief drove off with a $2,000 load of furniture from the rear of a Vancouver department store early today, while the truck swamper stood 20 feet away.

"I thought he was the driver," said Ed. Nault. "I wondered where he was going."

An official of the store said the truck contained an electric refrigerator, a washing machine, a gas range, kitchen table and chairs and an India rug.

70,000 Workers Return to Jobs In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 8 (CP)—Some 70,000 industrial workers today returned to their jobs after a six-week layoff. But the cause of their unemployment, the country-wide coal strike, still remained unsettled.

Return of the men to their jobs was the first big result of the Army's working mines in New South Wales to counter the crippling strike by the Commonwealth's 24,000 coal miners.

The miners are asking a 35-shilling ($4.85) weekly wage increase and a reduction in the work week from the present 40 hours to 35.

SMALL PRODUCTION

The Army Ministry announced tonight that the servicemen working the New South Wales open-pit mines had dug 37,500 tons of coal during the first six days of Army operation.

This was about 10 per cent of normal production. But it was enough to permit the New South Wales Government to ease some restrictions on industrial establishments.

William Morris Hughes, former Prime Minister, told a Liberal party rally that the strike was designed by Communists "as a full dress rehearsal for the great day when the flag of Communism will wave over this country."

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Tokio Rose treason trial today went into its sixth week, heading for a verdict some time in September.

Power Failure In Vancouver Stalls Industry

VANCOUVER, Aug. 8 (CP)—A 55-minute electricity power failure pulled industry and traffic to a standstill in Vancouver and New Westminster early this afternoon.

Officials of the British Columbia Electric Company said the source of the blackout was an explosion and fire at the Burrard Power Station.

Hawaiian Dock Workers To Fight Seizure Order

HONOLULU, Aug. 8 (INS)—The embattled C.I.O. Hawaiian dock workers mapped a two-pronged attack today against the territory's unprecedented dock seizure law to reopen strikebound island ports.

Honolulu's new "dock czar," Ben T. Bush, named to direct Government operation of the port, meanwhile rushed plans to seize the facilities of seven struck stevedoring firms, idle since the crippling walk-out began 100 days ago.

Bush called a meeting this afternoon to discuss various problems, including present dock working contracts, employment of supervisory personnel and administration of the loyalty oaths required under the emergency strike law.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS OUT

Traffic lights went out, while pedestrians and autos conducted a free-for-all at street intersections until police officers arrived to direct traffic.

Hundreds of workers sat on street curbs outside machine shops and industrial plants. Lanterns and candles were used in the emergency by many business firms.

The sub-station explosion injured only slightly operator V. H. Shorting, who was thrown violently to the floor.

Fire department officials described his escape as "miraculous."

A 250-pound fire door was hurled at the feet of R. W. Robson, underground construction foreman.

"It was a terrific report," he said. "Force of the explosion was felt a quarter of a mile away, but no damage is reported."

They were discussing it in the living-room after dinner on Sunday night. Phil was with them which was unusual as he had been retiring early every evening since Margie's return.

"What about Dru?" Phil asked.
"Have you invited her?"
Blanche said dryly, "If she follows her usual custom she'll come."

"That's not very kind of you, Mother! Just because she has joined you for tea a few times. This is different and she should be invited not only because she lives here. After all she is an artist."

Margie spoke hotly. Phil's indifference had hurt her more than she had admitted.

"Are you referring to the fact that I am the only one who doesn't do anything interesting?"
"Margie!" Blanche cried distressed

all. It was your idea. You're running the show. Dru is the outsider."

"All right, Philip. Ask her then." "I shall," he retorted and walked into the garden leaving the two women to stare at each other in consternation.

Navy Week Under Way With Downtown Parade

Marine News

Navy Week got under way yesterday with a naval parade through downtown streets early in the afternoon. This afternoon, starting at 2:30, the R.C.N. band will present a concert for patients at the Veterans' Hospital.

The parade will mark a hectic phase of the week's program, with ships of the Pacific Command scheduled to steam past Victoria — off Beacon Hill Park — between 9:30 and 10 in the morning. The fleet review promises to be an interesting occasion, and it is expected many Victorians will be at the waterfront to witness the exercise.

EASY TO SEE

The public will be able to see the ships from the Beacon Hill Park bluffs off Dallas Road, and from the breakwater at Ogden Point.

During the "steam past," the cruiser Ontario, the destroyers Athabaskan and Crescent, and the frigates Antigonish and Beaulieu will engage in fleet manoeuvres under the direction of Capt. H. E. Pullen, O.B.E., R.C.N., commanding officer of the cruiser.

Later the warships will return to their bases in Esquimalt Harbor where they will be made ready for "open house." Visitors will be welcomed aboard the ships between 2 and 6 p.m. tomorrow. H.M.C.S. Ontario and the Crescent will be reached through H.M.C.S. Naden on Admirals Road, while the other vessels will be tied up at H.M.C. Dockyard at the terminus of Esquimalt Road.

City Lauds Couple On Garden

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Waddell, who recently moved to a new home at 3056 Admirals Road, have received official congratulations from the city for their successful efforts to make the gardens of their former home, "Inglebrook," on Maplewood Road, a favorite gathering place for tourists from all over the world.

THERE 25 YEARS

Mr. Waddell said he and his wife had lived at "Inglebrook" for the past 25 years. The Waddells kept "open house" for the public for 18 years at their famed beauty spot.

"In the old days up to 800 people a day visited our gardens," recalled Mrs. Waddell.

"Inglebrook" was sold by the Waddells early this year when they moved to their smaller home by the sea on Admirals Road.

"But we simply can't give in," said Mr. Waddell. "Even though we are both over 70 we want our flowers."

He said he and his wife were planting new gardens on the grounds of their waterfront home.

Veteran of Navy Dies In Blaze on Fishboat

A former lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Navy died from asphyxiation about 3 a.m. yesterday aboard the new 45-foot trolley Arabella II which was tied up at the Orr & James, Ltd., wharf, 1210 Wharf Street.

He is 37-year-old Thomas Georgeon, 648 East 22nd Avenue, North Vancouver, who was a mate and navigator aboard the fully-loaded tuna vessel, one of the most modern on the coast. Georgeon's wife and young child live on the mainland.

Fire Chief Robert T. Brindle said yesterday it appeared as if the fire in the sleeping quarters was the result of smokers' carelessness. The bunks and ceiling of the quarters were damaged by fire which was quickly extinguished by city firemen, under the direction of Assistant Chief Frank Briars.

Sgt. Steven Dunnell and Const. Albert Wilson broke the lock on the boat's wheelhouse in order to gain entrance so Georgeon could be dragged out. Lieut. G. W. Hendry and Fireman Thomas Crabb pulled the stricken fisherman from the wheelhouse and immediately applied the inhalator. Firemen Robert Smith and Gordon Smith worked on Georgeon, but when Dr. E. L. Mc-Niven arrived, shortly after, he pronounced him dead.

Georgeon was lying face down in the wheelhouse, and it is believed he had made his way out of his burning bunk and past way up the burning wheelhouse stairs. A wheelhouse window was found smashed, but it is thought Georgeon had broken it in order to gain entrance to the locked vessel earlier.

FISHERMEN'S RESERVE As well as serving in the Navy several years, Georgeon was with the Fishermen's Reserve. Friends said he was working on the Arabella to gain experience before purchasing a craft of his own.

Skipper of the vessel is V. G. Stavakos, 1927 Lee Avenue. About 9:30 a.m. yesterday, more than four hours after the fire was quelled, the skipper was nearly overcome by fumes when he went into the engine-room. He was aided out by Fire Chief Brindle and Assistant Chief Briars, who had just arrived to investigate the fire.

Field Day To Be Held August 17

A number of competitions will be held during the next two weeks in connection with the city's playground program, parks department officials announced yesterday.

On August 16 at 2 p.m. (inter-park round robin) tennis will be held featuring duck tennis, volleyball, horseshoes and tether ball.

Friday, August 12, will be special event day in all city parks. Final eliminations will be held for the annual field day to be staged in Regal Athletic Park at 2 p.m. on August 17.

Esquimalt Legion Enjoys Picnic

Despite the dull weather a large gathering turned out for the Esquimalt Legion picnic at Beaver Lake on Sunday.

Twenty-one events were run off, and at the conclusion Revere A. L. Thomas presented the prizes to the successful contestants. A loud speaker system coupled with music added enjoyment to the festivities. J. W. Gibbons and J. E. Carey were in charge of arrangements.
